

We need your help!

If you manage any list server and group email list or have access to email addresses of colleagues who may be interested in attending the conference, please forward the attached document, along with a link to the conference web site where updates are posted periodically. In case you have not visited it yet, here is a link to the web site for your immediate access: <http://loquat2010.mku.edu.tr>

There are also a few other ways you can support this conference and bring it to the attention of others. If at all possible, we kindly ask that you:

1.) Add us to the Calendar of Events section of your organization's web site, newsletters and other publications in as many issues as possible.

2.) Create a link to the symposium web site from your organization's home page. Upon doing so, send us an email with your web site address and we will be happy to create a reciprocal link.

For more information, click here to visit the conference web site for a preview of what's to come!

Also, if you could take a moment to forward this message to colleagues who may be interested in attending, we would appreciate your help with getting the words out.
